TRIMMERS TRYING TO TAKE OVER BRITISH NATIONAL PARTY

Time and time again a nationalist party has been emasculated by trimmers. By this term I mean the people who clamour for radically requisite policy to be cut out in order to try and make the party more readily acceptable to the doped and deluded masses who constitute the overwhelming bulk of the electorate. In this they seek to come close to and copy the old parties characterising and controlling the system of 'Democracy', and representing to the trimmers models of political success. That success, however, belongs to the old parties and will not be attained by any new one disallowed by them because it comes from counting the heads of an electorate largely conditioned to respond in certain ways favourable to the old parties in consequence of the daily indoctrination of a decisively powerful media committed to the old parties because owned by their people. No new party outside the approved ambit of the system's manipulators has ever in past decades come remotely near to the necessary success to attain power by the ballot box. and in the forthcoming decades is not more likely but far less likely to do better. Thus the whole exercise of emasculation and solicitation by the trimmers has been and will continue to be a dismal failure.

In the former NF (UK) several decades ago the trimmers were allowed to do their work, and their success came not in seats in Parliament but in the disruption and ruination of that body. Those who experienced their havoc vowed 'never again' when they formed the present BNP, but right now it is happening all over again. The red light of warning flashed a year ago when on 24 September, 1998, a Michael Newland, having gained the position of its Press Officer, spoke for the BNP in an interview on the 'James Whale Show' on Talk Radio, and clearly unfolded the extent of the drastic compromise his faction of trimmers are engaged in for the sake of the electioneering with which they are obsessed. Their aim he proclaimed is to make the BNP part of what he called 'the mainstream' of British politics, by which he means the conversion into just another of the kosher parties having allegiance to 'Democracy', thereby 'respectable' and acceptable. To this end they have jettisoned policy as follows, and this is but the beginning.

With the crucial issue of coloured immigration, the trimmers will be satisfied for it to come down to what Newland called 'moderate levels' through repatriation which is purely voluntary and devoid of compulsion or deprivation of rights and benefits, and which means that millions of coloureds will remain. These millions will, said Newland, enjoy the 'same conditions' as anyone else, such as you and I, and he wants them to be integrated with us he said.

With Jews he showed that already he is truly a member of 'the mainstream' by describing them as 'just ordinary British people', and declaring that nothing at all is intended against them.

With religion he declared that he 'wants to see the Judao-Christian religion remain the national religion'. He and his faction are thus quite content to see the poisonous message of today's Christianity continue unopposed, although this foul contamination of the spirit underlies all that is rotten in Britain today.

With queers, here again he was anxious not to put off potential voters for the revised BNP, whatever their sexual perversion, so he was at pains to assure them that whatever they do in private is 'O.K.' with him and the queer BNP into which the trimmers are transforming the party.

Not surprisingly in view of this, Newland got on fairly well with the detestable interviewer, James Whale, who declared himself in favour of global interbreeding, and who drew Newland, when asked for his reaction if people at elections voted for such interbreeding, to endorse it with the comment 'Fine', meaning that, having made the dismal electorate the absolute and final determinant of what is to be done, the trimmers would accept this abomination.

The trimmers' talk of containing coloured immigration at 'moderate levels' - without forcible repatriation by either deportation or deprivation of the rights and benefits which brought the coloureds here and keep them here - is childish fantasy. The coloured birthrate is such that, even if all further such immigration was stopped tomorrow, the coloured population already here will certainly come vastly to exceed 'moderate levels' by the time of the BNP's far distant and hypothetical attainment of power by the vote, and indeed will predominate before then, and will not be sufficiently reducible by any schemes of voluntary repatriation through feasible inducements.

The inexorable fact is that the coloured population and thus the coloured vote is increasing far more rapidly than is the BNP vote, which remains mostly minute, as witness the BNP's almost entirely derisory vote (overall average 1.1%) in the recent European Parliament election, obtained at vast cost in money, time and manpower.

Even with all the BNP compromises the coloureds in their rising percentage in the electorate will not vote for the BNP, and the decreasing percentage of whites in the electorate will be mostly persuaded against voting for it, despite all the compromises, because of the decisively hostile persuasion of the dominating media of the old parties; even assuming that those old parties do not either ban the BNP outright or achieve its incapacity through denial of facilities either overtly or covertly. Thus all the trimming for the sake of electioneering is doomed to failure, and all the time and energy and money spent on that electioneering is being wasted on a fantasy and a futility.

In GR No. 36 I presented in full detail the case against the party game of electioneering. Parties are by nature committed to the present system to the extent that they are designed for electioneering where the heads which are counted are mind-moulded by an enemy media. Whatever their show of froth and spittle against nationalist parties, the old and controlling parties of 'Democracy' are really quite happy to see nationalists devoting themselves to and exhausting themselves in the futility of electioneering, thus keeping them out of the 'mischief' of far more effective activity against the system. While electioneering bolsters the system through participation in it, our task is to strive to make the system unworkable by disrupting it to the point of breakdown and a National-Socialist breakthrough. My Vanguard conception advanced in earlier issues I readily agree is but a slim chance, but electioneering through trimming is none at all.

The trimmers have never attempted to face up to my arguments against electioneering in GR No. 36. Instead they have sought refuge in personal disparagement as in an article in Spearhead by one of them, headlined 'No Time for Peter Pan', and gibes elsewhere about a recluse detached from the fields of conflict. This alleged 'recluse' happens to have been longer in the frontline of conflict than any of them, if not the whole lot of them combined. In the course of this he has learned in practice many years ago the futility of electioneering, although then personally obtaining in several parliamentary elections, despite a publicly known N-S background, a result better than that of most of their candidates today, nearly 30 years later. Judged by the current attentions of the Thought Police it would appear that the enemy authorities, contrary to the trimmers, still regard the old 'recluse' as still very much in the frontline of active opposition to them.

Prime target of the trimmers at the moment is the hitherto BNP leader, John Tyndall. Although he has been supporting the electioneering, he has now fallen prey to it as was to be expected, being deemed a handicap to it because of his susceptibility to denigration by the vilifying media of the enemy on account of the fact that many years ago he was my comrade in the leadership of the then National Socialist Movement. Indeed he was present with me as a speaker in London's Trafalgar Square on that memorable afternoon in July of 1962 when I told the crowd of thousands, including the rioting Jews, the truth that 'Hitler Was Right!'

Getting rid of the lifetime veteran, John Tyndall, along with the former principles of policy, is now not only the aim of the trimmers but the proceeding plan in execution. They have demanded and procured a BNP leadership election which is set for September 18 of this year. Thus the full implication of the Newland message of a year ago has now caught up with John Tyndall, and at the moment of publication it remains to be seen whether the old warrior can belatedly trounce the trimmers, or is to be relegated to the role of a 'recluse'.

If, as is likely, the trimmers win, the robust policy which once distinguished the BNP will be shed, and with it the appeal to people of robust minds, and this loss happily accepted for the sake of competing on more nearly the same ground as the parties of 'Democracy' they purport to be seeking to topple, but who have all the decisive advantage of being entrenched in the infrastructure of control, including the mind-moulding, election-dominating media.

THE FIGHT AGAINST THE THOUGHT POLICE Report since January 1999 Supplement

FURTHER RAID. MARCH SUPPLEMENT CONFISCATED. On 31 March, 1999, the revengeful Thought Police struck a second time. Arresting me in the street while out shopping, they confined me in Harrogate Police Station for some 10 hours while they searched and took property from my car and from my home, refusing to allow me to be present when they did this, thus preventing me from checking what was done. The seized property included all the copies along with the master original and the rough draft of a March GR Supplement reporting the developments since the previous Supplement in January, 1999, its other items including a tribute to Bela Kantor the Hungarist veteran who has died, a reproduction of the large item in the Inverness Highland News (23 Jan. 1999) concerning my Thought Police leaflets reaching the area thanks to an active supporter, photographs showing me putting leaflets under windscreen wipers on police vehicles, and mention of the charter of Simon de Montfort, lord of Leicester, permanently expelling the Jews from that city. This expulsion over 700 years ago has never been revoked, and is therefore still valid, like Edward the First's expulsion of the Jews from the whole country later in the same 13th Century, although both laws are ignored by those who, in response to Jewish pressure, make new laws today restricting British patriots. The Thought Police have so far refused to release the misappropriated copies of the March Supplement. If and when they do, it will be sent to you, even though much outdated, as at least a souvenir of the violation of our freedom of the press.

REFUGEE FROM COMMUNISM FINDS ENGLAND'S FREEDOM A FAKE. On the same day, 31 March, and at about the same time, Britain's counterpart of the KGB of Communism, Jew Jack Straw's Thought Police, arrested in the street elsewhere in the same area an elderly lady, a cancer patient, a refugee from the Soviet Thought Police who came to England in 1956 when Soviet tanks crushed the heroic uprising of the Hungarian Freedom Fighters because she thought England was the land of the free. They did this to her, then forcing their way into her home and ransacking it, putting her in a cell for hours, then putting her on police bail to attend several interrogations which are still continuing simply because she had committed the thought crime of living in a house that I own elsewhere than my home, without being actively involved in my politics. She now waits to see if they will prosecute her for the offence of association, and no more, with a 'recluse' who seems nevertheless to have mightily stung the renegades in power today.

CHIEF CONSTABLE HAD TO PAY FOR ELECTRICITY. When leaving, after ransacking my home in my absence on 31 March, the Thought Police left several lights on, which remained on till my return several days later. I billed them for this. They failed to pay. Therefore I took out a County Court summons against the Chief Constable of North Yorkshire for the value of my electricity wasted by his subordinates for whom he is legally responsible, and my valuable time in calculating it. Thereupon his solicitors presented his payment, including court costs, to avoid the case going to court with attendant exposure of the Thought Police.

REPEATED POLICE INTERVIEWS CONFRONTED WITH NOTHING BUT 'NO COMMENT'. The Thought Police followed up their 31 March raid with three 'interviews' meaning attempted interrogations, one of them on that date itself and the two others by placing me on continuing police bail to compel attendance on dates in April. All they got for their trouble was a response of 'No comment' to all their numerous questions, plus a statement I insisted on inserting on their tape recording of the interview putting on record that I refused to answer their questions as a measure of protest at their persecution. On one occasion, when I burst out laughing at one of their contentions, and the questioner tried to retort with sarcasm - 'I'm glad you find it so funny' - I increased his annoyance by telling him 'There has to be some light relief in these otherwise utterly boring proceedings.' A fourth session was scheduled for 4 June. This, a little beforehand, they postponed till 21 July, and then again till 5 August.

POSSIBLE HIP OPERATION INTERVENES. My osteoarthritis of the left hip having much worsened, I was obliged in July to contemplate a hip replacement operation. This was provisionally set for 3 or 4 August, and I notified the Thought Police accordingly, so that they knew I would not for this reason be attending their next session on 5 August, and that recuperation following the operation could take up to 3 months at least. They responded, accepting the situation and requiring me to contact them 'towards the end of October or early November'. Afterwards my hospital consultant and I decided that for various reasons it would be better to postpone the operation till November, whereupon I notified the Thought Police of this change of plan, in doing so telling them that such has become my condition that, if they now seek to require me to attend Harrogate Police Station in compliance with police bail, they had better send an ambulance for transport and have a police doctor standing by at the Police Station for my arrival and presence there. That was several weeks ago, and so far I have not heard further from them.

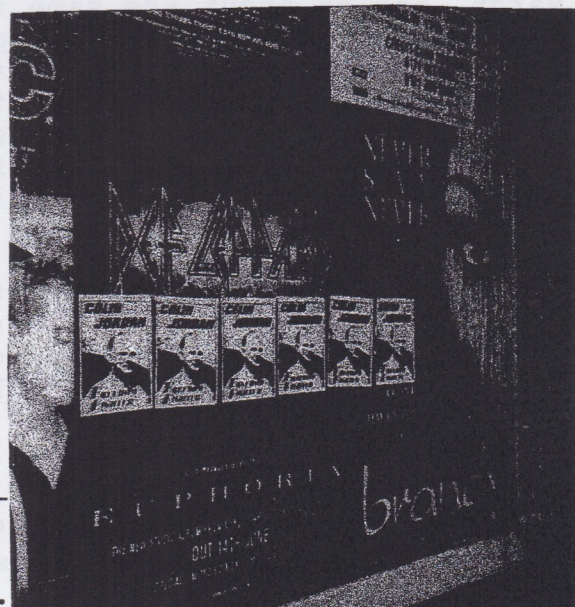

I do know that the police dossier in my case, which must be huge indeed, was finally sent by the police to the Crown Prosecution Service's Central Casework department in London by late June and that early in August that department was still engaged in considering the dossier and whether to apply to the Attorney General for his necessary consent to a prosecution under the relevant section of the Public Order Act. I have already, some months ago, lodged my own representation with the Attorney General, arguing that a prosecution is not in the 'public interest', which is one of the considerations facing him.

CAMPAIGN NEWS Your help has made itself felt

THE LEAFLETS you have distributed have had an impact. This I well know from the police 'interviews' where many of the very many unanswered questions concerned the appearance of these leaflets from north to south and east to west across the country, making the authorities of repression aware that, if they take on my prosecution, they take on my exposure of the Thought Police and the vile system of national decline and racial ruin these agents of enforcement uphold. My thanks to all of you who have taken part.

A LONDON SUBSCRIBER has on his own initiative produced a poster worded 'Colin Jordan Freedom Fighter. Help Colin Jordan Fight for our Freedom.' He has put them in various places including the one in this photograph alongside.

A NORTH-WESTERN SUBSCRIBER has sent leaflets to 53 local newspapers in Essex, Hereford, Mid-Wales, Berks. and Bucks., and a north-eastern one to 94 addresses elsewhere.

CAMPAIGN NEWS Support from other Periodicals

LE FLAMBEAU, which describes itself as an organ of information and liaison of the nationalist resistance, mentioned my fight against the Thought Police in its No. 31, and particularly my leaflet exposing the racial hatred contained in The Talmud (namely my 'Two Sides of Jack Straw's Jewish Justice'). Its address is B.P. 5087, F-14078, Caen, cedex 5, France. Its subscription is 150 francs in France, the rest of Europe 160 francs, and outside Europe 200 francs (by air 250 francs).

BLOOD & HONOUR (UK) in its No. 16 included in its 'Harley Column' mention of my fight against the Thought Police. The issue also included an article on Thomas Haller Cooper of the wartime British Free Corps. Its price is £1.50; its subscription (4 issues) £8 for Great Britain, £10 for the rest of Europe, and £12 for the rest of the world. Its address is BM Box 6826, London WC1N 3XX.

FINAL CONFLICT No. 22 contained further publicity and support for my fight. It also included, in an interview with Roberto Fiore, Secretary of Forza Nuova, his rebuttal of the allegation that Italian nationalists were responsible for the Bologna bombing in 1980. BCM Box 6358, London WC1N 3XX. Subscription (5 issues) UK £7.50, rest of Europe £10, outside Europe (air mail) £15,

THE NATIONALIST OBSERVER, P.O. Box 152603, San Diego, CA 92195, U.S.A., lists GR with other periodicals in each issue, and has supported my fight. Its Editor, Alex Curtis, has told me that he himself has had his home raided 5 times by the Thought Police since August of 1997, and that 'Today I'm ready for them every morning.' His policy coincides with ours in rejection of electioneering. Do not engage in elections, he says in his magazine, for doing this and trying to reform the system is propping it up by participation. Exactly! He further advises: do not form organisations which allow the enemy to identify and locate its members. 'My advice is to work as individuals.' It is an illusion, he says, that organisations provide back-up. What they do do is to generate a false sense of security and to enable guilt to be construed by association. His magazine appears monthly and the subscription for the U.S.A. is $20 for 12 issues. No overseas rate is stated, but no doubt can be ascertained by enquiry.

DEMOCRACY'S THOUGHT POLICE PROMOTE SUPPRESSION WORLDWIDE

GERMAR RUDOLF is a German research chemist who graduated with the highest honours in his subject and proceeded to doctoral work at the Max Planck Institute in Stuttgart. His doctoral dissertation was rejected and his highly promising career was devastated when it became known that he had done work corroborating the findings of the Leuchter Report which scientifically refuted the allegations of the gassing of inmates at Auschwitz and other wartime concentration camps. Such was the hate campaign against this free-thinker that he was obliged in 1996 to go into exile, where he remains today. That year all unsold copies of his book of 'Holocaust' revisionism, Grundlagen zur Zeitgeschichte, were seized and burnt by court order. Thus the authorities of German 'Democracy', who rail against the public burning of books of pornography and other outpourings of decadence, presided over by Dr. Goebbels in the 1930s as a gesture of Germany's upliftment to health and strength under National-Socialism, now in the 1990s burn books of scientific probity which dare to question 'Holocaust' indoctrination, this as a gesture of obsequiousness to World Jewry.

GOTTFRIED KÜSSEL, the Austrian N-S leader enduring long imprisonment, has seemingly been moved from the prison in Krems, as a recent letter of mine to him at this address given previously in GR has been returned as gone away. UDO WALENDY (Germany) has been freed from prison and is back at home, but his persecution has not ended: a minor administrator wants to withdraw from him the business licence he needs for his publishing firm, this because of his now 'criminal' record.

DR F. TOBEN (Australia) was arrested in April in Germany while on a visit there because he was engaged in gathering more evidence at variance with the orthodox contentions of the Jewish 'Holocaust'. He is the Director of the Adelaide Institute, Australia's leading revisionist organisation. Before he went to Germany he was in the process of being hauled before a grotesquely misnamed 'Human Rights' court in Australia concerned to deprive critics of the Jewish 'Holocaust' propaganda of their freedom of expression, supposedly one of the human rights; the Jewish elements responsible for the case having pressed for it on the grounds that his questioning of that propaganda amounted to spreading 'hate'. Before he left Australia he was able to visit long-imprisoned Jack van Tongeren in Albany Prison whose full address remains Albany Regional Prison, Locked Bag No. 2, Albany, WA 6330, Australia. Dr F. Toben's prison address for your letters and cards of support is JVA Mannheim, Herzogenriederstrasse 111, 68169, Mannheim, Germany.

ERHARD KEMPER, a 70-year-old patriotic German journalist, has already spent a year in gaol for disputing Allied and Jewish claims regarding World War 2. His prison address is JVA Münster, Gartenstrasse 26, Block C, 48147, Münster, Germany. His wife is seriously ill: Frau J. Kemper, Ruschheide 6, 48157, Münster, Germany. Information on this case was given in Ganpac Brief, produced by Hans Schmidt who was himself imprisoned in Germany some time ago, when on a visit, because of his exercise of freedom of expression regarding Jews in his bulletin, the address of which is P.O. Box 11124, Pensacola, FL 32524, U.S.A., and from which his book about his imprisonment, entitled 'Jailed in "Democratic" Germany' can be obtained at $19.50 plus $3.50 post. PEDRO VARELA (Spain), sentenced last November to 5 years gaol for publishing and distributing material questioning the Jewish 'Holocaust', has had his appeal transferred to Spain's Constitutional Tribunal by the appellate court which judged that his conviction may conflict with the provision of free expression in the Spanish Constitution.

MICHELLE BENSON (U.S.A.), a gaoled comrade previously reported in GR, had to defend herself physically last April against a black female prisoner with the result that the next day she was attacked by truncheon-wielding prison officers and thrown into solitary confinement. Send this courageous and defiant National-Socialist lady a message of solidarity. Miss Michelle Benson 18380, N.J.S.P., IFF-29, CN-861, Trenton, NJ 08625, U.S.A.

INGRID WECKERT (Germany), who wrote the book 'Flashpoint', refuting the democratic propaganda lie that N-S leaders directed the damage to Jewish premises in the 'Night of Broken Glass' in 1938 in retaliation for the assassination of a German diplomat by a Jew, has been sentenced to a fine or, failing payment, imprisonment for comparing the wartime diary of a Jewish concentration camp inmate, which gives no evidence of a practice of extermination, with that of a German soldier confined by the Americans at Dachau concentration camp, which gives evidence of numerous Allied atrocities against German prisoners of war. Assistance for this elderly and impoverished lady should be sent to:- Ingrid Weckert, Adlzreiter Strasse 5, 80337, Munich, Germany.

RICHARD SCUTARI (U.S.A.), an imprisoned comrade previously reported in GR, has been moved to the following, new, prison address:- Richard Scutari, 34840-080, Florence ADX, P.O. Box 8500, Florence, CO, 81226-8500, U.S.A.

ERNST ZÜNDEL (Canada), the redoubtable and extraordinarily resilient warrior for historic truth, never has much of a respite in his year in, year out battle with the forces of repression. Almost as fast as one process of law ends for him another one begins. In mid-April he won three judicial reviews against the Human Rights Tribunal acting against him, this on the grounds that a member of the tribunal had previously displayed bias against him. Jewish groups then lodged an appeal against the decision, and Ernst has now filed another Judicial Review application which is to be heard on Sept. 19. The Human Rights Tribunal is hearing complaints alleging he is inciting hatred against Jews on the Internet site owned and operated by Dr Ingrid Rimland in the U.S.A. which presents his material. In June, however, a Federal Court judge ruled that the Tribunal hearings must go on, contrary to Zündel's application that they should be terminated because of the mid-April rulings in his favour. His endless activity is reported by him in his bulletin 'Power', Samisdat, 206 Carlton Street, Toronto, M5A 2L1, Canada.

THE WAY AHEAD Part ~~Seven~~^{Eight} CAPTURING ATTENTION

The way of the political parties, the route of the trimmers, is to rely on the response of the general public to their solicitation of support, particularly by votes in elections held under the 'democratic' system where the preponderance of public persuasion and the apparatus of hindrance and exclusion is entirely in the possession of the old parties which in effect own that system, manipulating it with mendacity for their benefit, as it is designed. The way of the Vanguard of National-Socialism is not to participate in the system by relying on vote catching for the attainment of power, but to work to undermine and bring down that system so that power can be seized.

The way of the Vanguard does not, however, mean that the general public is to be disregarded as irrelevant because that general public is not instrumental to the attainment of power. It remains highly important to cultivate an attitude conducive to the breakdown of the system resulting in at least auxiliary promotion of that breakdown, at least abstention if not auxiliary assistance when that breakdown occurs and the seizure of power is attempted, and a more receptive attitude when power is attained and the instruments of influence are ours; and thereby a more co-operative attitude to the transformation of the state and society which will be our purpose when in power.

To this end what may be termed 'stunts', being imaginative and enterprising presentations of ideas, where the unorthodox and dramatic manner excites attention, and even some respect, if not approval, are highly valuable, and by their nature highly suitable for the select elite of activists constituting the Vanguard as distinct from the incapable mass of members of nationalist political parties. Let me now give you some examples of this activity.

Before the Second World War the minute Social Credit Party (the Green-shirts) won massive publicity with a stunt at one of the main horse races, I forget which. A special team of activists stationed itself near to the winning post and at the very moment when the winner was coming in, and all attention including newsreel cameras focussed on that winning post, a huge banner was unfurled high across the track reading 'Social Credit is Coming' and had to be photographed with the winner, and to appear in newspapers and cinemas throughout the country. Thought and planning and rehearsal and efficient execution by specialist personnel achieved an effect out of all proportion to their numbers and vastly greater than that of numerous party members in untold hours of humdrum leaflet distributions and little public meetings. Thus the idea, the will and the elite score where the mediocre members of nationalist political parties fail to score, and indeed are incapable of scoring, and whereby the human quality of the Vanguard enables it to function successfully against the vastly numerical and material superiority of the old parties and their system.

Years ago a handful of people came together to devise and pursue stunts, and doing so they secured massive publicity because of the nature of the stunts and the public notice of them they could not be given the silent treatment by the media. In other words by imagination and expert audacity they crashed their way into the news - and they were never caught.

They went to work on one occasion in the dead of night on a huge railway bridge high above a main road. one of them was lowered over the parapet of the bridge to paint a huge slogan calling for the release of Rudolf Hess, doing so with expert accuracy. The result was tremendously eye-catching. Then supplementary attention was paid to wording on the huge pillars supporting the bridge, and here advantage was taken of bridge maintenance ladders lying there and spotted in previous investigation of the site; the padlock securing them with a chain being smashed open. You should have seen all the local newspapers subsequently with their photographs and reports that a special railway maintenance carriage with an overhanging contrivance had to be brought from far away for the effort to obliterate the wording after a number of days. You could have put out thousands of leaflets for thousands of hours and not hit the eyes of as many people as this spectacular message on high.

On another occasion, the night before Britain's first motorway was opened, a team spent several hours painting enormous slogans in huge finely formed letters across the whole expanse of both sides of one of the bridges, undisturbed by any traffic or intruders. The sight was magnificent. That morning the motorway was officially opened with a motorcade containing the Minister of Transport and other officials and dignitaries. You can imagine the shock which was theirs on reaching this unofficial decoration on the bridge a fair distance along it, being the first to discover it. Frantic calls for eradication went out, but a mixture of black paint and creosote - to cause the lettering to sink in - had been used, and eradication was no easy task. Days afterwards they had to resort to cement-surfacing the whole of both sides of the bridge, their whole battle with the paintwork exciting massive attention.

In 1966 at the time of the Commonwealth Conference that year the square facing the House of Commons in London had flagpoles along its sides flying the flags of the Commonwealth countries. Rhodesia was excluded for then resisting its later surrender to the blacks, while the flag of newly created black Zimbabwe, then demanding military force against Rhodesia, flew from one of the poles. Investigation had shown that the authorities with unintended solicitude had provided a ladder lying behind a maintenance shed at the rear end of the square which stimulated thoughts of intervention. Although that intervention took place well after midnight such was the location that traffic was almost ceaselessly moving along two sides of the square, making it a bit tricky. However, fate showed favour and no interference occurred while the ladder was taken to the Zimbabwe pole and used to remove the offending flag and replace it with a banner in favour of white Rhodesia. Then, as the finishing touch, the ladder was chained and padlocked to the pole to prevent any vandal using it to reach the banner high above.

It was some time afterwards that two constables arrived on the scene from nearby Cannon Row Police Station. One of them attempted to haul himself up the pole not realising at the outset that the supporters of white Rhodesia had greased its lower length as a precaution against such misbehaviour. He promptly slid back to earth and gave up the attempt, and both of them departed. It was much later that workmen arrived to free the ladder and remove the banner, and that morning newspapers and radio and television bulletins had before then reported the embarrassing event, and no doubt the representatives of Zimbabwe had before then voiced their furious protest. The appropriated flag was later returned in a box to the Commonwealth Conference with a note - the contents of which were made known to the media - reinforcing the message of white resistance.

By now, from these examples, you should get the idea, and find food for thought. Such stunts do not involve violence or unnecessary damage. What they do involve is careful planning and execution, putting the chance of successful impact at the maximum and the chance of interference and seizure at the minimum. Every single exploit was based on detailed investigation and preparation, including surveying the location under the conditions of day and hour which could be expected to prevail at the time of the intended operation. This included finding a suitable place to park the vehicle or vehicles because unattended vehicles in the vicinity of an operation is like leaving a visiting card, being particularly suspicious late at night; and determining the positions for scouts who were always used to protect operatives and relieve them of any need or inclination to be distracted from full attention to the work in hand. Afterwards a discussion was always held to consider any faults detected and learn from them, avoiding them in the future. The whole activity was very much a learning process, both beforehand and afterwards, and thus professional instead of that impulsive, careless and clumsy way of going about things characteristic of melodramatic dabblers from the nationalist parties, stimulated to bravado by their continual beer, and doomed to make a mess of things, including making it so easy for the authorities to catch them. The secret of success in this line of business is not good luck but good management.

A team of six is very suitable as a unit being normally enough, providing two or three operatives and two or three scouts. Some operations may need or benefit from more, it was found, but to use more people than a particular operation really requires can be more of a hindrance than a help, creating complication, causing extra disturbance of sight and sound, and requiring extra transport.

Shown here is a meeting in London's Trafalgar Square in 1959 held by the WDL and another organisation jointly. In 1960 they became the earlier British Party. In 1962 part of it became then the National Socialist Movement.

The Threat to You

- Local Reds are forming strong-arm squads to bully you, if you oppose the coloured invasion.
- Local coloured organisations are demanding new laws to punish you, if you want to keep Britain white.
- The Negro Deputy Prime Minister of the West Indies has flown here demanding that troops be used against white people in Notting Hill.

We stand for the White People of Notting Hill

In 1958, at the time of the Notting Hill riots in which the white people of the area rose up against the coloured influx in its earlier years, I founded the White Defence League in premises in the area made available to me by the widow of Arnold Leese, Britain's National-Socialist pioneer, after whom the building was named Arnold Leese House. Shown on the left is a WDL leaflet.

Here below is a reproduction of a National Socialist Movement leaflet which has currently been published in The New Order, the newspaper of Gerhard Lauck, the American N-S leader now released from imprisonment in Germany. Comrade Lauck's newspaper has given repeated and strong support to my fight against the Thought Police and deserves our strong support in return. It is obtainable from P.O. Box 6414, Lincoln, N E, 68506, U.S.A. and its subscription is US $20 for the U.S.A. & Canada, and everywhere else by surface mail $30 for 12 issues. It is a very lively and informative periodical.

Why I am a National Socialist

... AND WHY YOU SHOULD BE TOO

by Colin Jordan

DEMOCRACY, the harm it has done and the harm it is doing to Britain, has made me a National Socialist, bringing me to see in that system which it has opposed and defamed so fanatically, which rejuvenated Germany 30 years ago, the only means of saving Britain from ruination today.

In the 1930's, when I was a boy at school, our country was the head of the greatest empire the world has ever seen, containing within its bounds almost every material resource it required, and virtually capable of self-sufficiency. Her natural ally was her great brother-nation of Germany. Together they would have been invincible: no power, Communist or Coloured, could have jeopardized them. United in peace, Britain, applying herself to the betterment of her people, could have achieved a fabulous prosperity, alongside the reborn Germany with its massive social and economic achievements.

Instead, our democratic politicians, responsive to Jewish pressure, fulminated against Germany, and sent us to war against her in 1939 for no adequate British reason whatsoever in the greatest act of folly in our history, and for 6 years British lives and resources were thrown away on a colossal scale in democracy's mad war. This, the politicians pretended, was necessary to preserve our freedom and our heritage. Since then our freedom in the full sense, our heritage, the true interests of our nation have been monstrously betrayed by these politicians of democracy.

As a direct result of the war, in which democratic Britain allied herself to the Soviet Union against anti-Communist Germany, Communism took over Eastern Europe and became the menace it is today to Britain and the rest of Western Europe.

Our empire, the monumental creation of our forefathers for our power and prosperity, has been given up piece by piece, and, as the final degradation, we have today the spectacle of our present misrulers striving to force our White kinsfolk in Rhodesia to submit to Black domination. Britain has relinquished her headship of empire and her national sovereignty for membership of and subordination to the cosmopolitan United Nations Organisation, dominated by the Afro-Asian element, and devoted to concepts of racial equality and racial mixture inimical to the security of the White people of Britain and elsewhere.

The Alien Take-over

While democratic Britain has been increasingly subjected to alien influences on the outside, internally the years since the war have seen the massive increase of Jewish influence over the economic, cultural and political life of the country, despite the fact that the Jews have acquired a state of their own, Israel, during this period. At the same time as the upholders of democracy have countenanced this usurpation as a matter of principle, they have allowed, encouraged and promoted the invasion of Britain by Coloured immigrants to the extent of now over a million, and with every sign of continuing indefinitely as an essential expression of democracy, which stands for racial amalgamation and firmly against any idea of preserving this land for its White, Anglo-Saxon stock to whom it truly belongs.

This progressive alien take-over of Britain has proceeded in the general atmosphere of decadence which is the result of democratic thought and practice. Our children, given no inspiring patriotic ideals and disciplined training in service to the nation while at school, leave school in the majority of cases to drift aimlessly, succumbing to the degeneracy of "pop" and jazz music, pep pills, and the habits of the beatnik; and expressing their frustrations in vandalism and hooliganism. The adult population, ceaselessly bombarded by the sentiments of race mixture and egoistic materialism from press, radio and T.V., has largely developed an attitude of servile acceptance of the growing influx and ascendancy of the alien, and an indifference to the nation as a whole and its future.

The Revolt against Democracy

This is what democracy has done to Britain, and, in revolt against it all, I am a National Socialist. I believe that, if there is anything worth fighting for, it is to preserve my own race in possession and control of my homeland, and to see that our resources of all kinds are used to the full for the betterment of our own nation. That belief is the very basis of National Socialism. It inspired the great revolt in Germany in the 1930's which raised a beaten, demoralised and impoverished nation to a splendour of united idealism and national achievement never before known, yet misrepresented by the lie machines of democracy on a scale unprecedented in history. Only the same belief in our race and nation, the same awareness of the need for a whole change of system and a new way of life in pursuit of that belief, and the same iron determination to fight to victory regardless of the opposition can save Britain from the slow death which is democracy, and make her great again and greater than ever before.

If you see things as I do, and believe as I do, then you are at heart a National Socialist also, and, if you are, it is your duty to declare yourself, and to come forward and take your place in the Battle for Britain.

'MERRIE ENGLAND 2,000' REPRINTED. Thanks to American comrades this book of mine - the remaining stock of which was seized by the British Thought Police last year - is now in print again, and the Thought Police have been defeated in their desire to prevent its circulation at the behest of their overlords. It is obtainable from NS Publications, P.O. Box 27486, Milwaukee Wisconsin, 53227, U.S.A. at $4 for one copy or $12 for 6 copies or $15 for 10 copies, all post free. The most economical way of making payment is by buying American dollars at the foreign exchange counter in any main branch of any bank, and sending the dollars with your ordering letter. It is a safeguard to wrap a piece of kitchen foil (aluminium) round the dollar note or notes, and put this inside the paper of the letter, preventing detection in transit by either feel or detector.

RELIABLE PRINTER IN BRITAIN REQUIRED. The printer in the south of England who printed the first four leaflets in my campaign against the Thought Police was raided by these scum, intimidated, and failed to answer subsequent letters seeking a reprint. I am thus looking for an efficient, reliable and economical new one, best of all a distinct sympathiser, preferably in this country, but, failing that, in the U.S.A. The identity of any new printer will be kept strictly confidential by me.

'SEARCHLIGHT' JOINS THE THOUGHT POLICE. Gerry Gable, publisher of that journal of intimidation and misrepresentation known as 'Searchlight', has significantly been appointed to the Advisory Panel of a new 'anti-racist' task force under a Deputy Assistant Commissioner Alan Fry which, national in scope, is additional to the other such task force under Deputy Assistant Commissioner John Grieve which is peculiarly concerned with London. Gable should be able to make quite a contribution from his own personal association with political terrorism, including his close attachment to another Jew in his gang who was convicted of arson at the premises of my former printer and present with him in obtaining by false pretences entry to the home of historian David Irving with intent to purloin his papers. Devoted to exposing and combatting the Gable gang is the Searchlight Victims Support Group. Their bulletin entitled 'Target' is obtainable from Mr Jones, BM Box 4534, London, WC1N 3XX, for three 1st class stamps (UK) or three I.R.C. abroad.

'LA VOZ DEL PUEBLO' ('The Voice of the Folk') is a new National-Socialist magazine from Spain which is the organ of the Circulo De Estudios Indoeuropeos. It is obtainable from its headquarters at Apartado 220, C.P. 19080, Guadalajara, Spain, for a subscription of 3000 pesetas which should be sent in an inner wrapping to hide the fact that money is enclosed.

HESS'S SON SEEKS A LAWYER FOR JUDICIAL REVIEW. Wolf Rüdiger Hess wants to try by Judicial Review in England to secure an amendment of the cause of death on the death certificate following his father's murder in Spandau Prison to silence him. For this he seeks an absolutely reliable lawyer in England who is willing to provide his services without fee, considering the benefit to his practice from conducting such a prominent case. If you can suggest anyone, please let Gothic Ripples know, and the information will be passed on.
